

Switzerland for WOC 2023

Switzerland has for years excelled as an organiser of top-class events. The most recent events were all carried out at the highest international level:

- World Championships 2012 in the Olympic city of Lausanne
- Swiss-O-Week 2014 at the foot of the Matterhorn
- JWOC 2016 in the well-known Engadine-valley with live-TV coverage
- Swiss-O-Week 2016 in the famous town of St. Moritz
- 9 World Cup Finals in the last 10 years well known because of the terrific atmosphere

The IOF believes in the long tradition of organising top-quality events and has therefore appointed Switzerland to organise the European Orienteering Championships 2018. Switzerland is also a designated partner of the new World Cup which shall be implemented in the next years.

“What a motivation to perform at top-level in a home WOC”

Simona Aebersold

Switzerland is

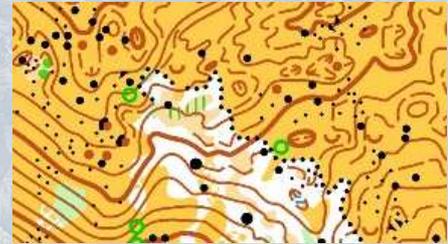

- capable and motivated to regularly host the orienteering world
- a country with many people with big experience in hosting international competitions
- a leading O-country

WOC 2023 – an unforgettable opportunity

The Swiss Orienteering Federation is keen to offer a memorable orienteering week with exciting competitions and is preparing a bid based on

- an attractive set-up for the WOC competitions
- a large range of various terrains for training and competitions
- a host region offering accommodation and infrastructure to match every budget
- making Orienteering visible at the arena and on TV
- combining to watch the world's elite, run in the same terrains and enjoy holidays in an attractive tourist destination

Support us with our bid. Our concept is intended to convince athletes, spectators, media and guests.

“I am convinced that the world champions 2023 will be welcomed in a similar fantastic atmosphere as I was in Lausanne 2012”

Matthias Kyburz

Welcome to Switzerland 2023
